email: knsuneetha@lbc.edu.in

Dr. K. Naga Suneetha is an Associate Professor of Sanskrit at Dr. Lankapalli Bullayya Degree College, Visakhapatnam, where she has been serving since August 2010. She earned her Ph.D. from Andhra University in 2013, focusing on "Social Conditions in Panchatantra and Hitopadesha: Impact of Arthashastra." In addition to her Ph.D., she holds Master's degrees in both Sanskrit and Telugu from Andhra University.

Dr. Suneetha has presented papers at various national conferences on topics including the comparative study of Bhartruhari and Vemana, women's roles in Hindu society, and sociological changes in folk literature. Her academic interests encompass classical literature, folk traditions, and gender studies, where she integrates classical texts with modern sociological perspectives.

She has also completed a 3-month Prathama Diksha training through the Rashtriya Sanskrit Sansthan. Prior to her current role, she was a lecturer at BRBM Degree College from 2005 to 2010. Dr. Suneetha's commitment to both teaching and research makes her a valuable contributor to the academic community.
