

Dr. JANET PAUL
Designation: Assistant Professor
email: janetpaul@lbc.edu.in

Dr. Janet Paul is an English teacher with extensive experience in teaching, communication, and student development across various educational levels. She currently serves as an Assistant Professor at Dr. Lankapalli Bullayya PG College, Visakhapatnam, and has previously taught English at the Department of Geology, Andhra University. She holds a Ph.D. in English from Andhra University where her research focused on teaching reading comprehension strategies to students through an intervention study.

In addition to her Ph.D., she earned an M.Phil. in English from Andhra University, with a focus on African American Literature. She also holds multiple postgraduate degrees in English, Linguistics, and Psychology, alongside several postgraduate diplomas, including certifications in teaching English from the English and Foreign Languages University (EFLU).

Her dedication to professional growth is demonstrated by her participation in numerous workshops and seminars, including those focused on English language teaching and literature. She has also contributed to the academic community through her publications on reading comprehension, strategies for improving students' fluency, and the role of women in Indian English fiction. With qualifications in APSET and CTET, she shares her expertise and passion to the field of English teaching.